

License contracts for integrated circuit designs

Prepared by

Mohammad Abdallah Alrawahnah

Supervised by

Dr. Mohammad Abu Bakr

Abstract

This study is based on research on the nature of licensing contracts for the designs of integrated circuits and the contractual responsibility of its parties, determining responsibility and applicable law, legal protection for them and addressing the legislative deficiencies of Jordanian law in some places, and explaining the appropriateness of Jordanian and Arab laws international agreements to address these assumptions where the legislative deficiencies emerged in relation to On the subject of criminal protection, as the legislator has not mentioned the amount of the criminal penalty due in the event of attacking the design or violating the rules of the licensing contract where the researcher has addressed this deficiency in addition to other problems Which may occur in relation to the designs of integrated circuits, as the study aimed to develop a new addition in relation to the issue of licensing contracts for the designs of integrated circuits and delving into them, as it relied on the descriptive analytical approach, by studying what are the designs for integrated circuits and the legal and technical definition of them and through a statement of local legal protection And international and how to extend protection outside the territory of the owner of the local design, the types of licensing contracts that fall on the design, the restrictions imposed on the exploitation of the licensee and the restrictions also contained on the licensee, and the researcher also touched on the contractual responsibility a Those who respond to the licensing contract for the designs of the integrated circuits, their types, conditions and provisions and the applicable law, and how to claim compensation arising from the mistake and the right to imprison the commitment to both parties to the contract so that this message was subject to the most important local laws and regulations in some international and Arab times, in addition to the international agreements governing the subject of the study where This study added uniqueness in terms of research and analysis of the legal texts of the Design Protection Law for Jordanian Integrated Circuits regarding the types of licensing contracts mentioned on the design and to address questions and problems that may occur on Ha.

Opening words: integrated circuit designs, Jordanian law , legal protection, Legal responsibility, License contract.