

Penal Protection of Private Life in Respect of Information Technology

By

Sami Khalaf Alraggad

Supervision Dr.ali Jabra

Al-Zaytoonah University of Jordan,2020

Abstract

The summary addresses one of the important criminal law topics of the private life of individuals and the change that has occurred as a result of the information and technological revolution. Although many countries have taken care of private life, their legislation has not reached the required level, including internal legislation, as well as those that have emerged from Western and Arab countries, including Jordanian law, which has made more than one amendment to accommodate every stage and development, but Jordanian law, whether sanctions or cybercrime, needs some of its texts to be reviewed to keep pace with modern technology.

Therefore, this letter addressed the nature of private life in the field of information technology by researching the definition of the private life of individuals where the different concepts were exposed to them legally according to them and in addition to the position of Islamic law glue from them. The researcher then touched on the legal regulation of private life. To show the most prominent citizens that characterized the private life of individuals in the field of information technology. And the statement of its origin among the electronic crimes. The researcher also addressed the objective protection of private life in the field of techno ...