

Criminal liability For the crime of Electronic sexual Blackmail in

Jordanian Law

prepared by

Amjed adnan abdeljawad al awaysi

Supervised by

dr. Ali al jabra

AlZaytoonah University of Jordan

Summary

This thesis dealt with such a distinct contemporary subject, its expansion is connected with the increasing revolution of information technology and technical means which integrated with humans connections and transforming into the digital world, and what accompanies it of the appearance of new methods in committing crimes, such subject is related with sexual electronic blackmail which we can find intensively in criminal courts these days, therefore it became a must to find a solution for such phenomenon and discussing its legal structure, the researcher discusses this subject with its details and with harmonization between the law provisions, jurisprudence and practical applications, whereas the researcher discusses at the beginning the meaning of sexual electronic blackmail crime, its characteristics and its motivations, then he points out the most common similar criminal phenomena, how we can differentiate between them, then he addresses the crime's objective provisions through its criminal form, its elements and its criminal liability. And at the end and whereas the legal provisions must be accompanied with the criminal case against the criminal therefore the researcher explains the Sequence of stages of the criminal case of this crime from its beginning in the preliminary investigation before trial then the prosecution stage and finally the trial in the criminal court with its final verdict and what accompanies it from formal provisions relating to the jurisdiction of the Court and substantive judgements relating to the proof of this crime either in the aspects of proof of the act or criminalizing the defendant. At the end of this thesis the researcher reaches to some results and recommendations which he concluded throughout the stages of his research and will be presented at the end of this thesis.

Keywords: blackmail, crime, sexual, electronic.